“ It is said that time waits for no one nor does it ease the pain one feels missing a love one. Every morning when I wake I think just how blessed my life has been knowing so many people who have added such value to my everyday life. From the old ones who raised me Grandma & Grandpa to the young ones who were my first playmates. Yet Boo it is the memory of you which has me dwell on just how magical my life was. The baby who made me smile just listening to that raspy giggle... the little girl who thought I could do no wrong when in fact that was exactly what I was doing. I miss you kiddo, especially on morning that have no sunlight to greet me. I can only wonder if our love for each other was as special to you as it was for me. Continue to dance with the Angels and continue to watch over us all until we are united in God's glory. Love you Becky

“ Your 54th birthday was this past Sunday. This is the first time in our lives that we can't laugh at us being the same age until Jan 3rd. I love to think how Mom and Dad just had their children as God had planned it for them, unlike today where we all have to plan every minute of our life. I miss you... feel a big void without you here. The Angels rejoiced celebrating your first heavenly birthday. Love, Stinker

“ My dear sweet Sistah... You are now resting in peace, pain free and eternally beautiful with our Lord and with your Dad!! Your unexpected departure has left us to reflect how precious life is and to cherish people in our lives. Oh what fond and beautiful memories we have!! From the age of 5 through our golden years, you have brought such sunshine, happiness and fun times. Your infectious laugh, care free ways, beautiful aura and most of all kindness will always be with me. What a blessing it has been having you in our lives and as a member of the familia!! You are certainly one of a kind. How i love and miss you Boo Boo. You will live forever in our hearts.

“ It has been one month today that you were taken home to be with the Lord. For many of us 30 days feels like yesterday and you are missed and thought of every second of every day we live on without you. I hope heaven truly is what we here can only dream of it being. I hope that you continue to rock on the stars and shine your light on those you left behind including me. My little Boo-Boo always in my thoughts as that little girl with the raspy voice following me everywhere and yet never a bother... Rest in eternal peace until we unite in spirit... And Boo, go give Grandpa a huge and tell him I still think of him every single day since October 7, 1972...and I will until I too lay in my death bed waiting to be called home. Love you to the moon and back.

“ Boo, With each day that passes I keep you closer and closer to my heart. The love you had for all of us, especially our children, will be your legacy. Your zest for life and beautiful spirit will be remembered by so many. There have been countless friends who have mentioned how the memory of your laughter will never be forgotten. Your giggle, your great dance moves, your big heart, your impersonations

“ Hey Boo, As you already know I talk to you everyday and I cry and tell you I miss you. I know you are at peace with Dad and all our loved ones that have gone before us. I know the blessed mother came to take you by the hand with her son our lord Jesus Christ and that you felt the glorious joy of all the angels singing. Rest in peace sweet sister until we meet again love and God's blessings to you!!!

“ As I prepare my mind over what will be the most difficult moments I think of that chubby little girl with the raspy voice following me around from one room to the next, to the backyard and the little back house at Grandma & Grandpa's house in Boyle Heights. The smell of fresh cut grass and the somewhat comfortable afternoon breeze of a summer evening Carol and I would rock on the swing singing songs and laughing. Carol wanting to play school and me attempting to remind her its summer and school is out. Carol would light up like a Christmas tree always around 3 - 3:30 because she knew the Helms man would soon show up and it was a sure thing we'd be eating Jelly Donuts...I remember the 2 block walk to the public library to go read kids books and it wasn't enough we'd walk, nope now I had to read to her... honestly Carol you can read it yourself. Her reply was "I know but you do it so much better. You make the people come to life...its like watching TV with my ears." Now Carol its my memories that I watch in my mind thinking of all those summers we shared. One by one all the Hernandez Kids came to spend time with Grandma and Grandpa but it was always me that benefited from the visits. I will miss you Carol from the moon and back but I will look up and picture you rocking on a star waiting for us to come and be with all those who have gone before us. Until my time comes my heart will hurt from missing you but my memories will keep me alive because I have enough to keep me full.
