“ Ed was someone who provided comfort and support to many people.

Long before the advent of motivational podcasts or the ubiquitous presence of TikTok, my father held a profound connection with those in need through an unconventional medium: a late-night radio program titled "Your Friend." Broadcasting from midnight until the early hours of the morning, he deliberately chose this time frame recognizing it as a period when individuals struggling with their anxieties or worries sought solace and guidance. With unwavering faith as his compass, he endeavored to be a comforting presence, offering counsel and companionship to those who tuned in, navigating through their darkest hours in search of peace. His commitment to this calling extended to the very end of his journey on this earth. Even as his health declined, he persisted in hosting his radio program from the confines of his modest garage space, imparting words of wisdom and messages of hope to his listeners. To those who knew him intimately, he was more than just a man; he was a devoted servant of God, tirelessly dedicated to spreading the divine message of love and compassion.

His departure has left an indelible mark, and the ache of his absence is keenly felt. Yet, amidst the sorrow, there remains a profound sense of gratitude for the time we shared and the enduring impact of his steadfast devotion to his faith and his community. He may be physically gone, but his spirit lives on, a testament to the enduring power of love and faith.

Anna, your Dad and I were friends and brothers in the Lord. I admired his creative mind and his adventuring spirit. He followed Jesus. I visited worship services that he pioneered, including an all night prayer watch. He has a practical side too: he strongly encouraged me to buy a washer and dryer for Linda before we married. And he attended our wedding. I loved my brilliant Filipino pastor friend, your Dad. I treasure the time, ahead of time, when we will worship together and have adventure assignments in Heaven! I wish I'd known of his illness and passing before now. But knowing him was a gift from God!
